Opinion 90-62

PUBLIC OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES -- Removal (of elected official physically unable to perform the duties of office)

SUPERINTENDENT OF HIGHWAYS -- Removal (physical inability to perform duties)

PUBLIC OFFICERS LAW, §§30, 36; TOWN LAW, §32: An elected town superintendent of highways who is physically unable to perform the duties of his office is entitled to continue in office and receive his salary, unless the superintendent is removed from office pursuant to Public Officers Law, §36, or a vacancy in the office is created under Public Officers Law, §30 or another provision of law.

You ask whether an elected town highway superintendent who is physically unable to perform his duties is entitled to remain in office and receive the salary fixed by the town board for his office for the balance of his term of office.

Public Officers Law, §30 sets forth events which create a vacancy in office. These include, among other things, resignation or removal of the incumbent; an incumbent's ceasing to comply with residency requirements fixed for the office; an entry of a judgment or order of a court of competent jurisdiction declaring the incumbent to be incompetent; and an incumbent's conviction of a felony or crime involving a violation of the oath of office (Public Officers Law, §30[1][b] - [f]). Physical inability to perform the duties of office, however, is not listed as an event creating a vacancy in office (17 Opns St Comp, 1961, p 448; cf. Town Law, §32[2], providing that a deputy town superintendent of highways shall act and be vested with all the powers of the town superintendent during the absence or inability of the superintendent to act).

Public Officers Law, §36 provides statutory procedures for removal of a town highway superintendent duly elected to and holding office (see Sullivan v Taylor, 279 NY 364, 18 NE2d 531; cf. former Highway Law, §160, repealed by L 1981, ch 183, which prescribed procedures for removal of town highway superintendents for malfeasance or misfeasance in office by the New York State Department of Transportation, upon written charges preferred by the town board or county highway superintendent). Section 36 provides that any town officer, except a town justice, may be removed from office by the Supreme Court for any misconduct, maladministration, malfeasance or malversation in office. An application for such removal may be made by any citizen resident of the town or by the county district attorney, and shall be made to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court held within the judicial department embracing the town (see also Executive Law, §63-a authorizing the Attorney General to maintain an action against a public officer who has performed an act which by law works a forfeiture of his office). In this regard, we note that it has been stated by one court, as dicta, that the continued incapacitation of a public officer due to illness, with the consequent inability to perform the duties of office, might constitute maladministration in office (Application of Baker, 87 Misc 2d 592, 386 NYS2d 313, citing 17 Opns St Comp, 1961, supra). However, whether the continued non-performance of the duties imposed on the office of highway superintendent as a result of a superintendent's physical inability to perform, in any given situation, constitutes maladministration in office is a question which can only be resolved by the courts in the context of a removal proceeding (id.).

Based on the foregoing, therefore, as a general rule, a superintendent who is physically unable to perform the duties of his office, is entitled to continue in office for the remainder of his term unless: (1) the superintendent is removed from office pursuant to Public Officers Law, §36; or (2) a vacancy in the office is created by the occurrence of one of the other events listed in Public Officers Law, §30 or pursuant to another provision of law.

With respect to the superintendent's entitlement to continue to receive his salary, it is well-settled that the salary of an elected public officer is an incident of his office and, therefore, unless otherwise provided by statute, such an officer is entitled to receive the salary fixed for the office so long as he or she holds that office (Matter of Bookhout v Levitt, 43 NY2d 612, 403 NYS2d 200; Fitzsimmons v Brooklyn, 102 NY 536; O'Leary v Board of Education, 93 NY 1; Periconi v State, 91 Misc 2d 823, 398 NYS2d 959, 963; 1980 Opns St Comp No. 80-555, p 158). We are aware of no provision of law authorizing the withholding of a highway superintendent's salary solely because the superintendent is physically unable to perform his duties (cf. Town Law, §27[1], providing for the withholding of salary of certain town officers and employees, including a highway superintendent, for the failure to submit to the town supervisor monthly reports of moneys received). Accordingly, the salary fixed for the office of highway superintendent may not be withheld solely because he is physically unable to perform the duties of his office.

Chapter 68. Zoning

Article XXX. Sight Obstructions, Fences and Walls

§ 68-404. Obstructions to motorist's sight.

Visual obstructions to a motorist's view at the intersection of streets or driveways are not permitted at any time within any sight triangle, as specified herein. Such obstructions include but are not limited to any sign, hedge, fence, shrubbery, foliage, automobile or other object as determined by the Town of Islip, whether movable or stationary, which is higher than three feet and lower than eight feet above the adjacent edge of pavement. Such obstructions shall not include existing buildings, public utility poles, traffic control devices, natural grades, sign posts or small trees which do not exceed 12 inches in diameter or 38 inches in circumference and which are trimmed to the trunk leaving a clear area between three feet and eight feet above the adjacent edge of pavement as illustrated in Figure 404.

§ 68-405. Sight triangles.

- A. Intersecting streets shall have a sight triangle at every corner. Each sight triangle shall be bounded by the pavement edges and a diagonal line joining points on the pavement edges which are located 30 feet from the point of the actual or projected intersection of the pavement edges as illustrated in Figure 405.
- B. Driveways (except one- and two-family driveways) intersecting with streets shall have two sight triangles as described in Subsection A, except that the driveway legs of the sight triangles shall be 20 feet as illustrated in Figure 405.
- C. One- and two-family driveways intersecting with streets shall have two sight triangles as described in Subsection A, except that the street legs of the triangles shall be 20 feet and the driveway legs of the triangles shall be 16 feet as illustrated in Figure 405.

- D. A required sight triangle may be increased by the Director of Traffic Safety where in his determination the required sight triangle at an intersection of two streets is insufficient to abate a traffic hazard.

§ 68-406. Fences and walls.

[Amended 2-28-2017]

- A. No fence or wall, except an existing retaining wall, shall be higher than six feet above the ground at any point unless such fence is an open chain-link-type or one which does not restrict light or visibility through more than 15% of its surface (evenly distributed), but shall not be higher than eight feet anywhere on the property. This provision pertaining to the restriction on height or visibility of fences, and walls shall not apply to junkyards or scrap metal processing facilities for which special permits have been granted by the Town Board.

[Amended 1-19-1982; 3-10-2009; 5-21-2013]

- B. No portion of any fence or wall shall be higher than four feet above the ground at any point when set back less than 15 feet from a street property line. For corner lots, no fence, or wall, shall be higher than four feet above the ground at any point when set back less than 10 feet from the second front yard property line. This provision shall not apply to retaining walls, which shall be set back from street and second front yard property lines in accordance with § 68-406F. For through lots, a fence up to six feet in height may be located on a through lot front yard property line, however, it shall be set back at least five feet from a sidewalk or edge of road pavement. No fence shall be higher than six feet when set back less than 15 feet from a through lot front yard property line.

[Amended 1-14-2003; 8-12-2003; 12-12-2006; 12-17-2019]

- (1) Exception: For single-family and two-family dwellings on corner lots of 11,250 square feet or less, a fence, no higher than six feet, may be located up to the second front yard property line, provided that no fence between the front yard property line and the front line of the dwelling exceeds four feet in height, and the fence complies with all other requirements of Article XXX, Sight Obstructions, Fences, and Walls.

- (2) Exception: For commercial properties with frontage along Sunrise Highway (SR 27), Veterans Memorial Highway (SR 454) or the Long Island Expressway (Interstate 495), a fence, no higher than eight feet, may be located on the rear or side property line abutting a residential use.

- C. No fence, wall or obstruction shall be higher than three feet above the adjacent pavement edge when located within any required sight triangle or when set back less than eight feet from any street pavement edge.

- D. No gate shall open into any street.
- E. The use of fences which deliver an electric shock, charge or current to any animal or human being, when touched, is prohibited. The installation or use of barbed wire, razor wire, concertina wire or any other similar wire or device designed to injure persons coming in contact with the same is also prohibited, unless required by federal, state, or local law or regulation.
- F. All walls greater than 18 inches in height from average, undisturbed grade shall be set back from any property line a minimum of four feet or a distance equal to the height of the wall above average, undisturbed grade, whichever is greater. Walls that are 18 inches or higher, at any point above average, undisturbed grade, shall obtain a permit prior to construction. For marine bulkheads, a Town of Islip Wetlands and Watercourses Permit may constitute the required permit, subject to the review of the Divisions of Building and Engineering. All walls, as defined in § 68-3 shall receive a determination of the necessity of site plan review from the Divisions of Building and Engineering prior to construction.
[Added 8-12-2003]
- G. All walls 18 inches in height or less from average, undisturbed grade, as defined in § 68-3, do not require a setback or permit unless directed by the Town Engineer after a preliminary site assessment. All walls, as defined in § 68-3, shall receive a determination of the necessity of site plan review from the Divisions of Building and Engineering prior to construction.
[Added 8-12-2003]
- H. Fences of no higher than eight feet shall be permitted to be located on the property line on Fire Island, provided that they do not restrict light or visibility through more than 15% of their surface (evenly distributed) and are not composed of chain link (unless a decorative chain link fence design is presented to the Department of Planning and Development for architectural review).
[Added 5-21-2013]
- I. If a fence is proposed along any street frontages for mini-storage warehouses, said fence shall be a wrought-iron-type fence, in conformance with § 68-406, and shall be designed pursuant to the direction of the Planning Board.
[Added 5-15-2018]
- J. No chain link (cyclone) fence shall be permitted in the front yard on all properties located in all Business and General Service Districts.

Bay Shore parking meters decried in Islip Town Hall, changes possible

Faulty meters. Loss of business. Employee safety concerns. Financial hardships for nonprofit organizations and those seeking medical treatment.

And, the general feeling of being unfairly targeted and "taxed" through the town's paid parking program in Bay Shore, which is located behind Main Street.

Those complaints and more were made publicly by Bay Shore and Brightwaters Village business and community leaders, who packed Tuesday's Islip Town Board meeting to speak up.

The grievances took nearly two hours to air in Town Hall.

Some speakers from Bay Shore also took exception to a recent developments in Town Hall that saw the board unable to get enough votes to fund a similar metering program for Islip's business district — putting plans for more meters across the town on hold.

(Meters will still be implemented at the Islip Hamlet train station.)

When it was over, Supervisor Angie Carpenter assured those who spoke their minds about the meters that "what you said is not falling on deaf ears; we are listening and we care."

Carpenter, as well as Councilwoman Trish Bergin Weichbrodt and Councilman Steven Flotteron, each reminded those attendance that the metering in downtown Bay Shore was always intended to be a pilot program, and a fluid program with room for tweaks and improvements.

"We'll have to figure it out over time," Flotteron said.

For her part, Bergin Weichbrodt said she "thinks it's time a change was made."

"I'm going to ask that my fellow board members join me in sitting down, and making significant changes to this, or flat-out pulling the program," she said to applause.

We who sign this petition are speaking with one voice in opposition to the proliferation of parking meters in the hamlet of Bay Shore and demand they be removed. This program is hurting businesses and residents. Bay Shore is the only Hamlet with parking meters and the funds collected go to the town's general fund, not back to Bay Shore.

It began with the purchase of a parking system for over $700,000 championed by Councilman Cochrane and first implemented on Maple Avenue. Most community residents understood the reasoning for metered parking there as Fire Island travelers would fill the lot and board ferries for the day or even a weekend, making it difficult for restaurant patrons to find parking slips.

Bay Shore parking meters decried in Islip Town Hall, changes possible

Faulty meters. Loss of business. Employee safety concerns. Financial hardships for nonprofit organizations and those seeking medical treatment

And, the general feeling of being unfairly targeted and "taxed" through the town's paid parking program in Bay Shore, which behind Main Street.

Those complaints and more were made publicly by Bay Shore and Brightwaters Village business and community leaders, who packed Tuesday's Islip Town Board meeting to speak up.

The grievances took nearly two hours to air in Town Hall.

Some speakers from Bay Shore also took exception to a recent developments in Town Hall that saw the board unable to get enough votes to fund a similar metering program for Islip's business district — putting plans for more meters across the town on hold.

When it was over, Supervisor Angie Carpenter assured those who spoke their minds about the meters that "what you said is not falling on deaf ears; we are listening and we care."

Carpenter, as well as Councilwoman Trish Bergin Weichbrodt and Councilman Steven Flotteron, each reminded those attendance that the metering in downtown Bay Shore was always intended to be a pilot program, and a fluid program with room for tweaks and improvements.

"We'll have to figure it out over time," Flotteron said.

For her part, Bergin Weichbrodt said she "thinks it's time a change was made."

"I'm going to ask that my fellow board members join me in sitting down, and making significant changes to this, or flat-out pulling the program," she said to applause.

The future of Bay Shore's parking meter program — as well as plans to expand into neighboring hamlets — is uncertain as Islip Town Board members remain divided on how to deal with complaints that the meters are spoiling decades of resurgence.

Dozens of residents and business owners pleaded with the Islip Town Board at a public meeting Tuesday to change or scrap the entire Bay Shore parking meter program that's been more than four years and hundreds of thousands of dollars in the making.

In February 2014, the town board awarded a $750,000 contract to Florida-based Cale America Inc. to purchase meter machines. The first meters were installed at the Maple Avenue docks in summer 2015; at the LIRR station in January 2016; the Bay Shore Marina in June 2016; and on Bay Shore's Main Street in November.

The most recent Bay Shore meters turned on earlier this month affect nearly 600 parking spaces in Town-owned lots behind businesses on Main Street.

For nearly two hours, speakers lined up to tell the five-member town board how the meters are affecting their bottom lines and causing confusion and interruptions for shoppers trying to enjoy restaurants and cafes or attend appointments.

Donna Periconi, president of the Greater Bay Shore Chamber of Commerce, called the meters "discriminatory taxation" because Bay Shore is the only hamlet within the Town of Islip where meters have been installed.

Islip officials recently said that parking meters are planned for the town-owned Ocean Avenue dock facility within the Bay Shore Marina District, and later in neighboring Islip hamlet's downtown areas and LIRR stations in Islip, Great River, Oakdale and Sayville.

Money has already been secured for the machines needed for Islip's LIRR lot, according to Islip Town Councilman John C. Cochrane Jr.

Last month, Council members Mary Kate Mullen, Steve Flotteron and Trish Bergin Weichbrodt voted to remove $400,000 worth of funding from a bond resolution for parking meters that would be installed in the planned areas.

After Tuesday's meeting, Cochrane, who has spearheaded the town's meter efforts over the past four years, said he will continue to tweak the Bay Shore program but that "it's too early" to completely dismantle it.

He said he will work to get the needed votes to pass the bond resolution for the program's expansion and believes that, in the long run, meters will benefit business districts. He blamed election season and that "many of those who are complaining are running for office this year."

Cochrane said he doesn't have a date for when the bond resolution will be introduced again.

Bergin Weichbrodt said after the meeting that she does not agree with installing meters in other areas and that the program in Bay Shore should be "significantly scaled back or completely removed."

"The more we spoke to Bay Shore business owners, the more we realized that these meters were creating a problem," she said.

“This was a pilot program in Bay Shore. We came to the realization that perhaps going forward with this program throughout the whole town is not a good idea.”

Facebook friends, when you speak I listen!! THAT is what an elected official should always strive to do. Regarding the meters in Bay Shore and the entire Town of Islip please know your concerns have been heard by me and I think this "Pilot Program" has failed our residents and our businesses and I'm calling on my fellow Islip Town Board members to vacate this project and free the residents and the businesses of a program that simply isn't working! ## Islip Town wants parking meters in Bay Shore commercial areas

Residents in the Town of Islip spoke up at a public hearing this week, calling the town's plan for parking meters in Bay Shore a "death knell" to the commercial progress the hamlet has made over the past two decades.

Town officials have said the meters -- which would be installed in other areas of Islip in the coming years -- is imperative to the upkeep and maintenance of parking lots, which the town says it cannot afford. The town's deficit was last calculated at $11.3 million at the end of 2013, while town wide taxes were hiked 28 percent in 2012.

Alan Sobel, an East Islip resident and Bay Shore business owner, said the plan will simply make history repeat itself.

"I've been around for the last round of parking meters in Bay Shore and they didn't work then," Sobel said of the parking meters that were last seen in the 1960s. "All they did was drive business out of Bay Shore."

After listening to three dissenters, the Town Board on Tuesday unanimously voted 3-0 to approve a traffic code amendment that would allow the meter machines to be installed in Bay Shore. Islip Town Supervisor Tom Croci is serving overseas in the Navy and Councilwoman Trish Bergin Weichbrodt was absent.

The project would put parking meters on Main Street between Park and Homan Avenues, and in municipal lots on Mechanicsville Road and Gibson Avenue by Memorial Day. Meters would also be put in Long Island Rail Road parking fields in Bay Shore by mid-September, while the Maple Avenue Dock would be outfitted by January. Sixty percent of parking spaces in Bay Shore would remain free. The town is looking to issue flat-fee parking sticker permits -- like the ones already available for Long Island MacArthur Airport -- for commuters and residents, while hourly parking will be available for others.

More town employees -- including park rangers and public safety officers -- will also have to be hired to enforce the parking meter rules, according to Councilman John C. Cochrane Jr. It has not yet been determined how many or how much that would cost. The town will have to bond the $750,000 contracted to Cale America Inc., a Florida-based parking management firm, to install the meters, which will take five years to pay back, Cochrane said.

Andrew Siben, of the Siben & Siben law firm on Main Street, which employs more than 100 people, asked the town board to "think long and hard" while it is making the rules for the meters.

"Parking meters could ultimately result in being a disaster," Siben said.

Plan For Downtown Parking Meters Angers Some In Bay Shore

April 21, 2015 2:15 PM

BAY SHORE, N.Y. (CBSNewYork) — Some business owners and residents are upset over parking meters that will be installed in downtown Bay Shore.

The town of Islip is adding 48 meters, which will be rolled out in phases, starting this year at the Long Island Rail Road station and the Maple Avenue docks.

Some are concerned the parking meters will hurt businesses, especially on Main Street, where they also are expected to be installed.

"I've noticed the meters in Lindenhurst. Lindenhurst is really going down," one longtime resident told WCBS 880's Sophia Hall. "More and more stores are closing. I do think meters are going to do the same thing here in Bay Shore."

Attorney Andrew Siben said his firm has collected more than 3,000 signatures from people who oppose the meters. (petition on line 2074) witten in 1,119

"One of the greatest concerns is that if people run the risk of getting ticketed along the Main Street, whether it be for dining at a restaurant while they're here or shopping at a store, they'll much rather go to the South Shore Mall," Siben said.

However, some business owners are applauding the idea because they said employees have been parking on Main Street all day long, limiting spots for customers.

A spokesperson for the town of Islip said the goal of the meters is to increase turnover to help businesses.

The town says it plans to use revenue from the meters to add cameras around the train station, improve lighting and fix up parking lots.

There will still be plenty of free parking available downtown, the spokesperson said.

Bay Shore Residents, Business Owners Oppose Parking Meter Plan

What do you think? Should there be more metered parking in downtown Bay Shore?

By Priscila Korb, Patch Staff | May 25, 2017 11:56 am ET | Updated May 25, 2017 11:59 am ET

Only one month after the Town of Islip started a pilot program to install parking meters in the downtown Bay Shore area, many local residents and business owners have expressed their opposition to the project.

In April, the Town started expanding the parking meter plan started in 2014 by adding meters at certain town parking lots including:

- The Town Lot at South Park Avenue and Gibson Street
- The Town Lot at Maple Avenue and Gibson Street
- The Town Lots along Gibson Street between Maple Avenue and Shore Lane
- The Town Lots along the south side of Mechanicsville Road between Park Avenue and Third Avenue
- A portion of the Town Lot west of North Park Avenue between Mechanicsville and Main Street

All other Town parking lots still remain free.

The metered lots were divided into sections with 4-hour limit parking (for downtown shoppers, visitors, and restaurant patrons) and 12-hour parking (for downtown employees). Overnight parking is not permitted at the lots.

At a recent public meeting to discuss the plan, over 200 local residents and business owners spoke on the plan, many expressing their concern over adding parking meters.

"I think when it comes to paying to park a car that you already have the payment for and the insurance for just to go enjoy your own time in a town where you're going to be spending the money anyway," Edward Troise, who works at Tula Kitchen in Bay Shore, told Fios1. "I think it's a little crazy to have to pay just to park your car."

The plan would turn over 600 parking spots into paid metered parking.

President of the Greater Bay Shore Chamber of Commerce, Donna Periconi, called the plan a "discriminatory taxation" since Bay Shore is the only hamlet within Islip Town that would have paid meters installed, according to a report in Newsday.

Town officials state that the plan was implemented to promote turnover in the parking spaces that are most important to the "economic well-being" of downtown Bay Shore -- those serving downtown shoppers, restaurant/pub patrons and visitors.

In addition, the Town claims that the program was put in place to significantly reduce the impact of Fire Island "Ferry" parkers taking up parking spaces intended for downtown businesses during the summer.

Employees who work in the area who want to park in one of the metered parking lots can purchase an "E" Stickers for $90 per year which will not guarantee a spot but will allow employees to park in any designated 12-hour limit Metered parking space without feeding the meter.

Downtown residents living in or adjacent to the Meter Zones can get a free a Downtown Resident "R" Sticker to allow them to park in all downtown Lots for free. However, an "R" sticker does not allow free parking in metered spaces on the Downtown Streets.

Trish Bergin Weichbrodt said at the meeting that Town officials "promised" locals that if the program affected Bay Shore business that they would "significantly pull back on the program or eliminate it completely," according to a report in Newsday.

Islip installs parking meters in lots in Bay Shore and on Main Street

sarah.armaghan@newsday.com @ArmaghanS

Updated May 17, 2017 6:00 AM

The phase-in of the Town of Islip's parking management program in downtown Bay Shore culminated this month with zoned spots behind Main Street businesses. The zones are within eight town-owned lots and include 525 numbered stalls in four-hour and 12-hour areas. An additional 62 stalls allow for 72-hour parking during the summer season, said Caroline Smith, an Islip Town spokeswoman. They are in effect daily from 9 a.m. to midnight. Parking costs 25 cents for 30 minutes for up to four hours; parking in the 12-hour sections costs $2 for up to 12 hours. Yearly parking passes for downtown employees can be purchased for $90. Metered street parking on and adjacent to Main Street is 75 cents an hour.

More than 62 percent of the town-owned parking spots in Bay Shore will remain free, Smith said. Free parking areas do not have numbered stalls.

Kate O'Connell, 24, a co-owner of Bay Shore Bean at the corner of Main Street and Third Avenue, said while she's had to "listen to a lot of backlash from customers," the meters have helped clear spaces for patrons to come in and get their coffee fix. A downside is that her employees have to park farther away from the cafe, which opened in December 2015.

"Bay Shore is a beautiful town, but it has a different vibe at night," she said. "For the girls who work here at night, I don't feel comfortable letting them walk to their cars by themselves."

In February 2014, the town board awarded a $750,000 contract to Florida-based Cale America Inc. to purchase meter machines. The first meters were installed at the Maple Avenue docks in summer 2015; the LIRR station in January 2016; the Bay Shore Marina in June; and on Bay Shore's Main Street in November.

Plans are in the works to install parking meters at the town-owned Ocean Avenue dock facility within the Bay Shore Marina District, Smith said. Islip Town officials also want to expand the parking program to neighboring Islip hamlet's downtown area as well as Long Island Rail Road stations in Islip, Great River, Oakdale and Sayville.

Islip Town Councilman John C. Cochrane Jr. guided the program from its early planning days. As residents and business owners voiced their displeasure with having to pay for parking and circulated a petition against the meters, Cochrane Jr. said they were for the betterment of the business district.

Smith said in a statement: "Since the program's infancy, the Town has been working with the community to ensure that this parking management program maximized the ease of parking in our downtowns, railroad stations and major popular areas, while at the same time eliminating the abuse of those who park beyond the allotted times."

A pay-by-smartphone app option will be available for use starting this summer, Smith added.

On a recent afternoon, Joan Laidlaw, 79, of Bay Shore, was meeting some friends for lunch at a restaurant on Main Street. An Islip Town public safety officer helped Laidlaw with the meter machine.

"Bay Shore is just coming back," Laidlaw said. "It was like a ghost town eight years ago. It's not so much the cost [of the meters], it's the inconvenience."

The following town-owned parking lots in Bay Shore are now metered:

- South Park Avenue and Gibson Street
- Maple Avenue and Gibson Street
- Gibson Street between Maple Avenue and Shore Lane
- South side of Mechanicsville Road between Park Avenue and Third Avenue

A portion of the town lot immediately west of North Park Avenue between Mechanicsville Road and Main Street

Critics say the controversial Bay Shore meter program is crippling local businesses, but Islip Town officials say parking management is necessary in the hamlet's booming downtown.

Last week, Islip officials announced the latest change to include more free parking in some areas, including on weekdays before 6 p.m. in the town-owned lots behind Main Street.

The changes were in response to complaints about the expense and inconvenience of the meters, but town officials said the parking program has been embraced.

"The vast majority of people in the downtown district applaud the parking management program," Town Supervisor Angie Carpenter said at a Friday news conference.

But Bay Shore Chamber of Commerce president Donna Periconi said her organization had to ask the town for the free parking before 6 p.m. policy, and that town officials have not been cooperative in addressing the concerns of local businesses and residents.

"The community is very upset about the meters and the parking lot," Periconi said in an interview. "Our employees are the only employees in the Town of Islip that have to pay to go to work. We are the only hamlet in the Town of Islip that has meters."

Town officials said the meters are necessary because the popularity of the Fire Island ferries and the influx of traffic to new downtown businesses have brought many new drivers to Bay Shore. "It would be government malpractice if we don't at least try to find a way to try to manage this successfully," Town Councilman Steve Flotteron said.

The parking meter program started at the Maple Avenue docks near the Fire Island ferries two summers ago. It expanded to the hamlet's Long Island Rail Road parking lot in January 2016, to the Bay Shore Marina last June and to Main Street in November. The lots behind Main Street were metered in May.

Town officials said the pilot program will expand to other popular shopping strips in Islip Town. The next phase was to involve downtown Islip village, but the plan is on hold after the town board failed to pass a bond vote to fund the meters.

Jason Fenley, a Bay Shore lawyer and Democratic candidate for the town board, said in a statement Monday that the changes do not fix the fundamental problem.

"Their parking meter program will continue to negatively impact this historic downtown, and for what purpose?" Fenley said in the statement. "Let's call this what it is — a tax on Main Street, plain and simple."

Periconi said an online petition to remove the meters has more than 2,000 signatures.

Maria Negron, owner of Pride Embroidery on Main Street, said the meters have helped her customers who used to circle the block for parking. "If they have no change, I give them a quarter because they're going to spend more than a quarter in my store," Negron said at Friday's news conference.

Carpenter said the meters are here to stay. "The program you see today may not be the program you see six months from now, but you will have a parking management program," she said. "There will be meters in downtown Bay Shore. That is a given."

Park and pay

In downtown Bay Shore, parking is:

Free before 6 p.m. on weekdays in town lots behind Main Street.

25 cents for 30 minutes for up to four hours in town lots.

Bay Shore residents and community groups gathered at Islip Town Hall Tuesday afternoon to protest a parking meter program that critics have said is crippling local businesses.

"Bay Shore has been treated unfairly by the members of this Town Board, for we are the only hamlet in the Town of Islip that has meters," said Donna deLuca Periconi, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Greater Bay Shore. "Their promises that the revenues from the meter program would be reinvested into Bay Shore have also been

This zone is shown as a dimension of 20 ft MIN. per UCV indicated from the back of the last parking space to the beginning of the crosswalk. At the top of each example, a NO PARKING ZONE is shown from the north edge of the topmost parking space to the white stop line in advance of the crosswalk.

At the top of the figure, the NO PARKING ZONE is shown extending from the south edge of the crosswalk to the north edge of the topmost parking space, a dimension shown as 20 ft MIN. per UVC. The topmost parking space is shown as a dimension of 20 ft long, typical for end space. The parking space below it is shown as a dimension of 22 to 26 ft.
- The middle example shows the parking spaces marked with a short vertical white line to mark the side of the space and a short horizontal white line crossing it to mark each end of the space. The width of these white lines is shown as a dimension of 4 to 6 inches, and the distance from the outside edge of the horizontal arm to the outside edge of the vertical arm is shown as a dimension of 12 inches. A leader arrow points to one of these white cross markings from a note stating "Extension enables driver to see limits of stall.

broken . . . the meters are a discriminatory tax and only Bay Shore is paying it." Islip officials have responded to complaints by including more free parking in some areas, including on weekdays before 6 p.m. in town-owned lots behind Main Street. In a statement, Town Supervisor Angie Carpenter said the "managed parking program" was needed as the popularity of the community grew.

"The town has worked with the community since the program's infancy to ensure that this parking management program maximized the ease of available parking in our downtowns, railroad stations and major popular areas, while at the same time, eliminating the abuse of those who park beyond the allotted times," Carpenter wrote.

"Overall, the vast majority of parking in downtown Bay Shore is still free."

While the parking meters were not on the town board's agenda Tuesday, the topic dominated the discussion during the public comment period. After the meeting, town board member Trish Bergin, who is up for re-election, issued a statement calling the meters a "failure."

"Sometimes well-intended actions by elected officials fall flat," she said, adding that she wanted the board to "join me in voting to rip these meters out."

Protesters said that community residents and businesses are still seeing negative effects from the implementation of a meter district, and that they will demand

"immediate action to correct this unfair and damaging program, including a full accounting of the cost and revenue associated with the program."

Jason Fenley, a Bay Shore attorney who is running for Islip Town Council, said he relocated his law practice to the edge of town because his clients were complaining about the meters and he feared losing business.

"Based on the meters I evaluated whether I wanted to stay in Bay Shore, and ultimately I didn't," he said.

The parking meter program started at the Maple Avenue docks near the Fire Island ferries two summers ago. It expanded to the hamlet's Long Island Rail Road parking lot in January 2016, to the Bay Shore Marina last June and to Main Street in November. The lots behind Main Street were metered in May. Rates range from 25 cents for 30 minutes in town lots to 75 cents an hour for metered street parking on and near Main Street.

Town officials have said the meters will expand to other shopping districts in Islip.

Parking meter protest

Islip Bulletin Story By ANTHONY PERROTTA

ISLIP TOWN—On Tuesday, Oct. 24, residents of Bay Shore protested the recent installation of parking meters in their town. The rally, which was sponsored by the Concerned Citizens of Bay Shore and Brightwaters, was held in front of Islip Town Hall. Over the past decade, the hamlet of Bay Shore has been experiencing a resurgence, so much so that Islip Town decided to install meters for parking management that began appearing everywhere.

But Donna Periconi, president of the Bay Shore-Brightwaters Chamber of Commerce, said Councilman John Cochrane influenced the regrettable decision. She explained that her organization first accepted the gradual installation of parking meters on Maple Avenue; then by the marina and the train station; and lastly, on Main Street. But Periconi says the decision to install meters in parking lots—which began this May—had never been discussed.

Before the rally, Periconi told the Islip Bulletin that since the parking meters are only in Bay Shore, it is discriminatory to businesses and residents in that hamlet.

The Bay Shore Women's Huddle conducted a survey over the summer. According to their findings, 52 percent of people asked said they shop in Bay Shore as little as possible since the inception of parking meters in their town, with 7 percent saying they will no longer shop in the town. Forty percent of business owners also said their businesses have decreased, while another 60 percent of all polled said they have seen no improvements in the parking lots and surrounding areas, nor do they feel safer.

"Last week," Periconi said, "I called the town to ask that the meters be suspended for our Halloween Festival held this past Saturday." On Saturdays, parking meters are in effect from 9 a.m. to 12 midnight. Town supervisor Angie Carpenter ultimately approved Periconi's proposed suspension. "I'm sure the hamlet of Islip didn't call and ask for the suspension of meters for their Fall Festival held the weekend before. They don't have meters. Only Bay Shore does." She also noted that the town's municipal lot adjacent to Islip Town Hall was recently paved, "but you don't see any white striping there," she added.

Councilman Cochrane said he agrees with the residents' right to protest, but he also believes the political season has gotten in the way. "It's frustrating," Cochrane said. "People don't want to look at the big picture. All they see is what's happening on Main Street. The truth is, parking is at a premium right now. We have multiple projects, including a $2-million marina project that needs to be maintained. And these parking meters are taking some of the burden off the business owners.”

Cochrane also pointed to the number of restaurants opening and the apartment boom that’s taking place in the area. “Employees and tenants now have designated places to park,” he said.

But, despite Cochrane’s argument that the parking management has drastically improved, many Bay Shore residents insist the parking program is hurting their community.

Karen Norris, owner of Pinot’s Palette on W. Main Street in Bay Shore, said she has gotten nothing but complaints about the parking meters. “People can’t understand the meters,” she said. “We also consider ourselves ADA accessible. I can’t imagine what it will be like when it’s snowing.”

Outside of Town Hall, Susan Barbash reminded onlookers that Bay Shore used to be known for its vagrancy rates. “We feel all the advances we’ve made will be lost,” she added.

“The [town board] has not kept their word,” Periconi said at the rally. “They have abandoned Bay Shore.” She added that opposition to the parking meters would continue. “We will no longer be the hamlet to subsidize the town’s budget.”

Islip, NY – Islip Town Board members today approved amendments to the Town’s Traffic Safety Code that will move forward a Multi-space Parking Meter Program planned for downtown Bay Shore, an initiative launched by Town Councilman John Cochrane, Jr., to address insufficient parking in the hamlet since its rebirth over the last decade. The traffic amendments were made during a public hearing, and specify the use of parking meters in designated areas in Bay Shore, including municipal parking lots and portions of Main Street. The public hearing follows the Board’s approval of an agreement with the consulting firm Cale America, Inc. of Tampa, Florida, for the purpose of assisting the Town in implementing its first ever parking meter program. The agreement was approved at the February 11th Board meeting.

Councilman Cochrane has been spearheading the effort for two years now, in direct response to the concerns of residents, merchants and community groups about inadequate parking in downtown Bay Shore. The once depressed area has been transformed into a thriving business district, complete with restaurants, boutiques, specialty shops, commercial ventures and professional services. The increased activity, however, has presented challenges to the parking infrastructure in the area, making it necessary for Islip Town officials to seriously consider alternatives.

"This committee has worked together over the last two years to identify specific parking issues in the Bay Shore business district," noted Councilman Cochrane. "We enlisted a parking consulting firm during the process to research a parking management system that will best fit the dynamics of the area, and after months of research and community meetings, have decided on a system similar to ones already established in downtown communities on Long Island."

Parking meters will be installed in municipal lots on Gibson Avenue, Mechanicsville Road, and on Main Street between Park and Homan Avenues. And while details of the parking management program have not yet been formalized, the program will be implemented in stages, with completion of Phase I expected in time for the busy Memorial Day weekend. Conceptually, Phase I would consist of installing solar-powered, touch pad multi-space parking meters in downtown parking fields, as well as along Main Street. Each meter would be bi-lingual and provide users with a variety of payment options. Phase II would consist of installing parking meters in the Long Island Railroad Parking Fields, and would be finished by mid-September. Phase III would see parking meters placed at the Maple Avenue Dock, and completed in January 2015. It is the hope of the committee that parking meters along Main Street will be decorated with historic photos and information in an effort to keep the current character of downtown Bay Shore. The Town will next prepare the formal program for the operation of parking meters, identify the exact locations for each meter and schedule the installation of meters and accompanying equipment and signage.

This latest measure is just another advancement of downtown Bay Shore as the heart of an intermodal hub that includes rails, roads and maritime transportation. In January, the Town learned that it was being awarded $1.6 million from the New York State Department of Transportation's Enhancement Program for major improvements to Fourth/Maple Avenue, from the Long Island Rail Road Train Station to the Maple Avenue Dock.

Bay Shore residents, business owners upset over parking meters

May 23, 2017 By Sarah
Armaghan sarah.armaghan@newsday.com

The future of Bay Shore's parking meter program -- as well as plans to expand into neighboring hamlets -- is uncertain as Islip Town Board members remain divided on how to deal with complaints that the meters are spoiling decades of resurgence.

Dozens of residents and business owners pleaded with the Islip Town Board at a public meeting Tuesday to change or scrap the entire Bay Shore parking meter program that's been more than four years and hundreds of thousands of dollars in the making.

In February 2014, the town board awarded a $750,000 contract to Florida-based Cale America Inc. to purchase meter machines. The first meters were installed at the Maple Avenue docks in summer 2015; at the LIRR station in January 2016; the Bay Shore Marina in June 2016; and on Bay Shore's Main Street in November.

The most recent Bay Shore meters turned on earlier this month affect nearly 600 parking spaces in Town-owned lots behind businesses on Main Street.

For nearly two hours, speakers lined up to tell the five-member town board how the meters are affecting their bottom lines and causing confusion and interruptions for shoppers trying to enjoy restaurants and cafes or attend appointments.

Donna Periconi, president of the Greater Bay Shore Chamber of Commerce, called the meters "discriminatory taxation" because Bay Shore is the only hamlet within the Town of Islip where meters have been installed.

Islip officials recently said that parking meters are planned for the town-owned Ocean Avenue dock facility within the Bay Shore Marina District, and later in neighboring Islip hamlet's downtown areas and LIRR stations in Islip, Great River, Oakdale and Sayville.

Money has already been secured for the machines needed for Islip's LIRR lot, according to Islip Town Councilman John C. Cochrane Jr.

Last month, Council members Mary Kate Mullen, Steve Flotteron and Trish Bergin Weichbrodt voted to remove $400,000 worth of funding from a bond resolution for parking meters that would be installed in the planned areas.

After Tuesday's meeting, Cochrane, who has spearheaded the town's meter efforts over the past four years, said he will continue to tweak the Bay Shore program but that "it's too early" to completely dismantle it.

He said he will work to get the needed votes to pass the bond resolution for the program's expansion and believes that, in the long run, meters will benefit business districts. He blamed election season and that "many of those who are complaining are running for office this year."

Cochrane said he doesn't have a date for when the bond resolution will be introduced again.

Bergin Weichbrodt said after the meeting that she does not agree with installing meters in other areas and that the program in Bay Shore should be "significantly scaled back or completely removed."

"The more we spoke to Bay Shore business owners, the more we realized that these meters were creating a problem," she said.

“This was a pilot program in Bay Shore. We came to the realization that perhaps going forward with this program throughout the whole town is not a good idea.”

Facebook friends, when you speak I listen!! THAT is what an elected official should always strive to do. Regarding the meters in Bay Shore and the entire Town of Islip please know your concerns have been heard by me and I think this "Pilot Program" has failed our residents and our businesses and I'm calling on my fellow Islip Town Board members to vacate this project and free the residents and the businesses of a program that simply isn't working! Please read the snapshot of the Newsday article for those of you who do not get Newsday!

I was annoyed that the Town flip-flopped on the reason for the meters; I was under the impression that the intent was to finance cameras at the station but somebody decided against the cameras. I was tired of being harassed by vagrants at that station and wanted no part of parking there.

Bay Shore Residents, Business Owners Oppose Parking Meter Plan

What do you think? Should there be more metered parking in downtown Bay Shore?

By Priscila Korb (Patch Staff) - Updated May 25, 2017 11:59 am ET

Only one month after the Town of Islip started a pilot program to install parking meters in the downtown Bay Shore area, many local residents and business owners have expressed their opposition to the project.

In April, the Town started expanding the parking meter plan started in 2014 by adding meters at certain town parking lots including:

- The Town Lot at South Park Avenue and Gibson Street
  - The Town Lot at Maple Avenue and Gibson Street
  - The Town Lots along Gibson Street between Maple Avenue and Shore Lane
  - The Town Lots along the south side of Mechanicsville Road between Park Avenue and Third Avenue
  - A portion of the Town Lot west of North Park Avenue between Mechanicsville and Main Street
- All other Town parking lots still remain free.

The metered lots were divided into sections with 4-hour limit parking (for downtown shoppers, visitors, and restaurant patrons) and 12-hour parking (for downtown employees). Overnight parking is not permitted at the lots.

At a recent public meeting to discuss the plan, over 200 local residents and business owners spoke on the plan, many expressing their concern over adding parking meters.

"I think when it comes to paying to park a car that you already have the payment for and the insurance for just to go enjoy your own time in a town where you're going to be spending the money anyway," Edward Troise, who works at Tula Kitchen in Bay Shore, told Fios1. "I think it's a little crazy to have to pay just to park your car."

The plan would turn over 600 parking spots into paid metered parking.

President of the Greater Bay Shore Chamber of Commerce, Donna Periconi, called the plan a "discriminatory taxation" since Bay Shore is the only hamlet within Islip Town that would have paid meters installed, according to a report in Newsday.

Town officials state that the plan was implemented to promote turnover in the parking spaces that are most important to the "economic well-being" of downtown Bay Shore -- those serving downtown shoppers, restaurant/pub patrons and visitors.

In addition, the Town claims that the program was put in place to significantly reduce the impact of Fire Island "Ferry" parkers taking up parking spaces intended for downtown businesses during the summer.

Employees who work in the area who want to park in one of the metered parking lots can purchase an "E" Stickers for $90 per year which will not guarantee a spot but will allow employees to park in any designated 12-hour limit Metered parking space without feeding the meter.

Downtown residents living in or adjacent to the Meter Zones can get a free a Downtown Resident "R" Sticker to allow them to park in all downtown Lots for free. However, an "R" sticker does not allow free parking in metered spaces on the Downtown Streets.

Trish Bergin Weichbrodt said at the meeting that Town officials "promised" locals that if the program affected Bay Shore business that they would "significantly pull back on the program or eliminate it completely," according to a report in Newsday.

We who sign this petition are speaking with one voice in opposition to the proliferation of parking meters in the hamlet of Bay Shore and demand they be removed. This program is hurting businesses and residents. Bay Shore is the only Hamlet with parking meters and the funds collected go to the town's general fund, not back to Bay Shore.

It began with the purchase of a parking system for over $700,000 championed by Councilman Cochrane and first implemented on Maple Avenue. Most community residents understood the reasoning for metered parking there as Fire Island travelers would fill the lot and board ferries for the day or even a weekend, making it difficult for restaurant patrons to find parking slips.

However, the Town Board pushed through this metered parking plan without listening to the concerns & input of the residents of Bay Shore. There are now meters on Main Street, on both north and south service roads behind Main Street, on the streets that run perpendicular to Main Street, in the LIRR parking lot, on the Maple Avenue Dock, at the Bay Shore Marina, and in the Benjamin's Beach parking lot. There are NO Meters in any other hamlet and the Board voted down funding meters in Islip, except for their LIRR station.

For over 30 years the hamlet of Bay Shore suffered benign neglect from the town. Our Main Street was littered with shuttered businesses. Discharged mental patients, and a variety of other unfortunate souls roamed the sidewalks. The train station was in disrepair. The marina offered boat slips with plenty of parking with a deteriorated bulkhead and Benjamin's Beach was a dirty little unfiltered cove.

It was not until the concerned residents of this hamlet joined together behind the Greater Bay Shore Chamber of Commerce and the Bay Shore-Brightwaters Summit Council, that we began to see these problems addressed. Our volunteers worked tirelessly for years to build this hamlet into the esteemed position it holds today. We've donated our time, our money and our talents all for the betterment of the Hamlet of Bay Shore only to see you Town of Islip officials come along to tax our success in the form of parking meters.

Bay Shore is not Islip Town's cash cow. We are individuals, families and businesses that work hard, pay our taxes and strive to be the best we can be.

Islip board OKs more ferry parking despite residents' concerns about flooding

By Antonio Planas antonio.planas@newsday.com Updated April 28, 2019 5:40 PM

The Islip Town Board approved a new parking lot for a ferry business in Sayville, despite concerns by some residents who worry construction could lead to flooding that would threaten nearby homes.

The board voted 5-0 this month to expand a gravel parking lot on two acres for 239 spaces, adding 109 spaces, said Guy W. Germano, the lawyer representing Kenneth Stein III, who is president of Sayville Ferry Service and the owner of the limited liability company named on the application. The proposal successfully sought converting three parcels into zoned business districts.

"During the busy summer months and the nice summer days, and holidays, the ferry parking lot that exists builds up, and there are lines of cars along River Road waiting to get in," Germano said at the April 18 change-of-zone meeting. "They can't get into the parking [lot] until someone else leaves."

The property is near River Road and Browns River Road and is surrounded by Browns River, wetlands and the Great South Bay.

The Islip Town Board voted 5-0 to expand a gravel parking lot on two acres to add 109 spaces, for a total of 239 spaces. Credit: Danielle Silverman

According to an engineer with the project, a lawsuit filed by a Sayville resident against Stein-controlled entities and Islip Town, as well as comments by residents, the area has a history of problematic draining.

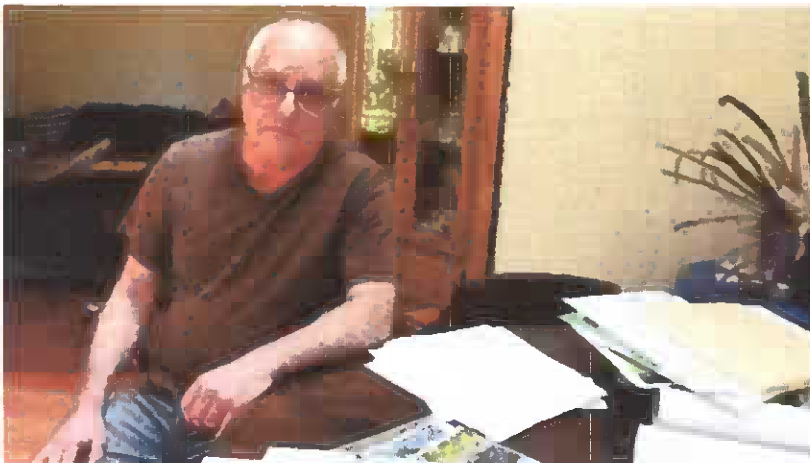

"The backyards are wetlands and they will be most affected by the fill that goes in to make this parking lot," Brenda Coman, who lives on Browns River Road, said at the zoning meeting. "There hasn't been given any consideration to the fact that this is going to flood yards on the west side."

Sayville resident Anthony Bernardis has an ongoing lawsuit in state Supreme Court in Suffolk County against Islip and Stein-controlled entities for flood damage to his home. The 2008 lawsuit accuses Islip of failing to maintain and repair a drainage system on Terry Street, where he lives. It also alleges personnel with Stein-controlled entities, which manage parking lots used for the ferry business near Bernardis' home, failed to stop flooding, said Bernard T. Callan, Bernardis' lawyer.

"They have not addressed the flooding that occurred on those lots," Callan said. "As a result, my client has borne the brunt of what occurs on those properties."

The existing parking lots for Sayville Ferries sit east and south and walking distance from Bernardis' home. Newly constructed parking will be south of those lots. Neighbors have moved out over the years due to drainage problems, Bernardis said.

Sayville resident Anthony Bernardis filed a lawsuit in 2008 that accuses Islip Town of failing to maintain and repair a drainage system on Terry Street, where he lives. Credit: Danielle Silverman

"It's going to make the entire neighborhood worse," he said.

A 2012 letter that Bernardis provided from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to then-Islip Supervisor Tom Croci said: "Of most concern is the recent development of parking lots that included the addition of large amounts of different fill materials. ... This fill may have ... changed the natural drainage patterns from toward the creek to away from the creek, potentially increasing the risk of flooding."

Islip board members in February passed a resolution to improve Terry Street. The upgrades include removal and replacement of existing drains. At that board meeting, Islip Supervisor Angie Carpenter thanked Sayville residents for their patience and said the fixes are a "viable and permanent solution."

Tom Dixon, with Nelson & Pope Engineers & Surveyors based in Melville, said at the meeting, "It's a very low-lying area, a very challenging area for our drainage."

Several Sayville residents and business owners spoke in favor of the parking lot expansion. They said Stein's ferry company is an economic engine attracting tourists to the hamlet who take ferries to Fire Island.

Stein declined to comment last week about residents' concerns but said there are no plans for additional ferry services.

Re: Freedom of Information Act Appeal

FOIL

Dear : Appeals Officer

This is an appeal under the Freedom of Information Act.

I requested documents under the Freedom of Information Act. My request was assigned the following identification number: S52019. On May 26, 2020, I received a response to my request in a letter signed by Lori Hahn. I requested documents under the Freedom of Information Act. My request was assigned the following identification number: S52016. On May 20, 2020, I received a response to my request in a letter signed by Lori Hahn. I requested documents under the Freedom of Information Act. My request was assigned the following identification number: M5206. On May 12, 2020, I received a response to my request in a letter signed by Lori Hahn.

As for each of these foils they have never been answered.

As an officer of law you took an oath to tell the truth, your answer to a previous appeal was very disturbing to say the least. Town board minutes are in electronic form, but you chose to lie.

Thank you for your consideration of this appeal.

Sincerely,

Patricia Montanino

To: [redacted]

Dear James Bowers,
here is a copy of the letter we spoke of earlier.

As this matter of Councilman John Cochrane has been left with ignoring a very serious issue, it is now going to move forward as our elected representatives have refused to comply in their duties.
Thank you,
Islip taxpayers.

Public Notice

RE: Foil Applications No. 11811

Dear Ms. Montanino:

Please be advised that I have reviewed your Foil application and the response given to you by the Town of Islip Records Access Officer, Lori Hahn, and Assistant Town Attorney, Richard Hoffmann.

In your appeal you refer to an "EFOIA" amendment requiring that records be provided in their electronic form if that form is "readily reproducible" as long as production would not significantly interfere with the operation of the agency's automated information system." As Mr. Hoffmann clearly explained to you in his April 2, 2018 letter the Town Board Minutes for the years 2012, 2013, 2014n through May, 2015 are no longer available by way of electronic transcripts because they have been replaced by bound Minutes which are now the official records of the Town Board Meetings. With respect to the minutes for the time period June, 2015 through December, 2015, they would be available to you in electronic format. However, Mr. Hoffmann has inquired if certain pages you have requested could be extracted from the electronic disc and has received a negative answer. Ergo, you can only have the discs in their entirety.

In short, as stated in Mr. Hoffmann's letter, upon receipt of a deposit in the amount of $184.50 the records you have requested can begin to be copied and if the copying cost exceeds that amount, you will be so advised.

Very truly yours,

FOIL # M11811

DATE: 4/20/2018
RECORDS APPEALS OFFICER

FOIL

I sent a Freedom of Information Law request RECORDS ACCESS OFFICER, the Records Access Officer for The Town of Islip, March 2018.

On 4/2/2018, I received a letter from RECORDS ACCESS OFFICER denying my request for ELECTRONIC FORM RECORDS. The Officer denied my request because PLEASE SEE ATTACHED.

I would like to appeal the denial of access.

Access to electronic records

In 1996, the federal Freedom of Information Act was amended to specifically include electronic formats in its definition of a record. Known as "EFOIA," the amendment required that records be provided in their electronic form if that format is "readily reproducible" as long as production would not "significantly interfere with the operation of the agency's automated information system."

Records that are requested in electronic form can consist of emails, spreadsheets and electronic versions of paper records like memoranda and policy decisions. Note that if a paper record would be exempt from disclosure under an exemption to the law, then the electronic record would be properly withheld or similarly redacted under the same exemption.

The federal government proactively publishes many records online through the websites like Data.gov which posts government spending records and individual federal agency reading rooms, which the law requires be maintained, like this one at the FCC. Federal records often found online include agency regulations, policy statements, staff instructions related to FOIA and frequently requested public records (though there is no set standard on what constitutes a frequently requested record). States like Georgia, Kentucky, Illinois, and others also have comparable sites where they post state spending information and other public records.

Section 89(4)(a) of the Freedom of Information Law, requires the head, chief executive, or governing body of the entity, or whomever is designated to determine appeals, to respond within 10 business days of the receipt of an appeal. If the records are denied on appeal, please explain the reasons for the denial fully in writing as required by law.

In addition, the Freedom of Information Law directs that all appeals and the determinations that follow be sent to the Committee on Open Government, Department of State, One Commerce Plaza, 99 Washington Avenue, Albany, New York 12231.

I look forward to your prompt response.

Sincerely,
Patricia Montanino

Good Morning Pat,

No, in our opinion, the Town is not permitted to password protect or encrypt the record.

Section 87(5)(a) of FOIL states: "An agency shall provide records on the medium requested by a person, if the agency can reasonably make such copy or have such copy made by engaging an outside professional service. Records provided in a computer format shall not be encrypted."

E-FOIL: Issues of Access in the Digital Age – Part 1

This is the first in a three-part series written as a result of a conference held in December 2009 at Albany Law School. This article sets the stage for the conference and summarizes the first panel discussion.

The State of FOIL with Respect to Access to Electronic Records

Issues of access to electronic records in New York have become increasingly important. Between the propulsion of government into the digital age, the federal government's push to place vast amounts of data online, and the public's pressing demand for information instantly, government agencies at the state and local levels are managing and releasing information in ways that were unimagined when the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) was enacted more than thirty years ago.

In 1986, for example, the Court of Appeals determined that FOIL required agencies to review records "reasonably described," those it was capable of locating "with reasonable effort" through use of the agency's indexing system in place at the time of the request. In Konigsberg v Coughlin, an inmate with a long history of incarceration sought access to all Department of Correctional Services records that could be identified using his name or inmate identification number. Although the agency was not able to locate all of the records that contained the name or identification number, a clerk testified that she was able to locate approximately 2,300 pages of records. The Court held that the agency was required to review those 2,300 pages of materials identified either alphabetically or numerically in the agency's filing systems to determine rights of access; however, it was not required to search for those records that might contain such information but that were not filed alphabetically by name or identification number, for the request did not, in those instances meet the requirement of reasonably describing the records. Stated differently, an agency is not required to search through the haystack for the needle, even if it is known that the needle is there, somewhere.

More recently, in 2006, the Legislature adopted an amendment to FOIL regarding an agency's responsibility with respect to searching for records stored in an electronic information system. Specifically, FOIL now provides that "[w]hen an agency has the ability to retrieve or extract a record or data maintained in a computer storage system with reasonable effort, it shall be required to do so." Although it has not yet been interpreted by the courts, the challenge with respect to a reasonable search involves the volume of records that can be found and the agency's ensuing responsibility to review such records (a) to confirm that they are responsive to the request and (b) to determine which parts are required to be made available to the public.

Two years later, the Legislature amended the fee provisions in FOIL, specifically with respect to electronic records, allowing the imposition of fees equivalent to the salary of the lowest paid employee capable of performing the necessary work, when it takes an agency more than two hours to prepare a copy of an electronic record. In the alternative, if the agency's information technology equipment is inadequate to prepare a copy, the agency can charge the actual cost of hiring an outside professional to prepare the copy. Although this provision has not been reviewed in a significant way in court, the issue of the volume of records capable of being identified and retrieved remains.
